SHELTON INSTRUCTOR ATTENDS CONFERENCE ON APPRENTICESHIP TRAINING

Bradley A. Moore, Title III Institutional Aid program activity director for curriculum development at the Fredd Campus of Shelton State Community College, recently returned from Charleston, South Carolina where he attended the Fifth Annual Southeast Regional Apprenticeship and Training Conference.

The conference, entitled "Apprenticeships: Preparing the Workforce for the 21st Century," was co-sponsored by the United State Department of Labor's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, Trident Technical College, the South Carolina Employment Commission, National Occupational Information Coordinating Committees (SOICCS).

"Apprenticeship is a training strategy that combines supervised, structured on-the-job training with related theoretical instruction and is sponsored by employers or labor/management groups. There are approximately 800 occupations in operation and recognized by federal and state apprenticeship agencies. For the 1991-92 school year, approximately 206 students in the state were enrolled in apprenticeship programs with 143 companies in 46 occupational areas. Tech Prep, apprenticeship, and secondary/postsecondary education have been combined to offer unique training programs in several schools and colleges in South Carolina. Resources will vary according to the specific apprenticeship program, its duration, and the sponsor, said Moore.

"While at the conference, we examined model programs to see what modifications would have to be made to fit our particular needs. Hopefully, we will be able to offer several apprenticeship programs in the West Alabama service area in the future," said Moore.

For additional information on apprenticeship programs, contact Moore at 758-3361, ext. 40.
